Wyatt's Gives Back

Longmont liquor store Wyatt's Wet Goods auctioned off special items to support local causes this month at its Rare Whiskey Auction.

On Saturday, Feb. 7, the annual auction brought guests to the business at 1250 S. Hover St. to bid on rare beverages. Proceeds from the event are being donated to Longmont-area nonprofits.

This year's auction pulled in roughly $24,000, which will be split evenly between four beneficiaries. "I love the auction," said Mat Dinsmore, managing partner at Wyatt's Wet Goods. "I love the fact that money goes to great charities."

Proceeds will go to Longmont organizations the Veterans Community Project, the Skyline Kiwanis Club and nonprofit Pearl Promise. The Loveland Veterans Honor Monument, a site for people to remember and reflect on the legacy of military veterans, is still in its fundraising stages and will be built at Loveland Sports Park.

Wyatt's has been hosting the Rare Whiskey Auction for around a decade. Dinsmore estimated that his store has raised upwards of $400,000 for local charities over that span of time.

Auction guests had the opportunity to claim some sought-after whiskey varieties that Wyatt's had acquired through its distributors. One of the items up for auction on Saturday was a Weller Millennium whiskey-bourbon blend, which Dinsmore said has a retail price tag of $6,000.

While the beneficiaries of the auction have changed over the years, the goal is always to raise both money and awareness for local nonprofits. Dinsmore said that's an important value for Wyatt's to have as a family-owned business.
